

Family Safety and Supervision Overview

Intended user: Families and students

Purpose and directions

Purpose: Explain the practical safety, supervision, readiness, transportation, and records boundaries for current coursework, The Cottage, and proposed senior external work-based learning.

When to use: Use when a family needs a public overview. Specific student medical, dietary, accommodation, incident, or safety concerns must use approved school channels.

Teacher authority is clear

The teacher directs classroom and Cottage instruction and retains final authority for safety, equipment, sanitation, allergens, accommodations, readiness, grading, event commitments, and changes to the plan.

Classroom and laboratory instruction

- Students follow current course procedures for hygiene, clothing, footwear, sanitation, equipment, ingredients, allergens, time and temperature control, emergency response, and cleanup.
- The teacher controls pacing and may adjust tasks, roles, equipment access, or the learning plan based on readiness and instructional need.
- Students ask for help, stop work, and report a concern when a condition is unsafe or unclear.
- Specific medical, dietary, disability, accommodation, or incident information is handled through approved school processes, not a public page.

The Cottage and school-based events

- The Cottage is an existing student-based enterprise and instructional environment, not an unsupervised outside job.
- Menus, production, service, packaging, client communication, costs, and closeout remain subject to teacher and district approval.
- Students may practice leadership, but they do not replace teacher authority or assume responsibility for legal, financial, staffing, or emergency decisions.

Readiness before independence

Additional responsibility follows successful course progress and demonstrated competency. Course assessments, performance tasks, authentic work, feedback, and other verified evidence help the teacher determine readiness. Attendance or interest alone is not enough.

Proposed external work-based learning

Not yet active

No public page authorizes an external placement. A future senior work-based learning course would require district authorization, an approved training station and plan, coordinator oversight, legal and insurance review, working-paper compliance, transportation decisions, supervision, and approved records systems before student participation.

Transportation and communication

Families should follow the instructions issued for a specific approved school activity. Transportation for proposed senior external work-based learning remains unresolved. Safety questions and private student details belong in monitored school channels.
